General Agreement With Terms

Since the Badoglio Government in Italy had declared war against Germany and had become a co-belligerent, it is most important that the man-in-the-street in this nation should know that Prime Minister Mackenzie King has stated clearly and definitely that the Government of Canada has been informed right along of activities or proceedings, and that it had been in general agreement with its terms, with this being in reference to those activities or proceedings which culminated in the official statement about the present position of the Badoglio Government in Italy as it had been arranged by the Government of the United States, Great Britain and Russia.

Plotters of Aspirants

If any of the gossip which is heard now from Parliament Hill is well informed, there is a rapidly increasing pace of activity behind the scenes in political circles in this nation's capital, and all signs indicate that there will be an exceptionally large number of political parties or groups playing their roles in the next general election drama in Canada. Moreover, these signs reveal that a surprisingly large number of candidates may contend the seats in many parts of the country, though most of the discussions about possible drastic changes in the electoral machinery of the present federal voting system have no specific authoritative backing, being nothing more or less than mere speculations.

Developments Are Expected

There will be given more and more attention in this country to the physical fitness of the ordinary people of the nation, and its development in this respect are expected in due course along Parliament Hill where for some time there has been a great deal of no less than $225,000 for a national council on physical fitness.

Remembrance Day Service Draws Big Crowd

The usual Remembrance Day service was held in the Olympia Theatre, Delia, on Nov. 11th, and was largely attended. Veterans of the first Great War, and Reserve Army members assembled in the theatre at 10.30 a.m., and at 11.45 were "fallen in" on Main Street. The parade was marshalled by Sgt. Major J. Armstrong, under the command of Staff Officer W. Morrison, who marched the men and women to the cenotaph north of town where a short service was held, conducted by Rev. T. Taylor, pastor of Delia United Church. Following prayer, two minutes silence was observed after which a wreath was placed at the base of the stone memorial by Conrad F. Chapman.

Marching back, the band entered the Theatre, where a large congregation already had taken their seats, and the service was continued.

Proceedings commenced with a short prayer by Rev. Taylor, and the singing of "O Canada," followed by another prayer and a Scripture reading.

A choir of about a score of "teen age girls then mounted the platform, and sang "Land of Hope and Glory," under the leadership of Rev. Taylor.

While the collection was being taken up Miss Irene Brunner and Mr. D. Stevens gave a piano and violin selection.

Following a prayer, the hymn: "Onward, Christian Soldiers" was sung by the whole congregation.

Rev. T. Taylor gave an eloquent address, and said this was a time for deeds, not words, and spoke on the progress of the last war and the carnage that followed. Germany took advantage of the peace, and World War II was the result. He said the last war had robbed us of many of the young men who would have been leaders during the past 25 years, and also dwelt on the horror and devastation of the present war. In conclusion the speaker offered prayer, and called on Sgt. Major Armstrong to take over the service.

Mr. Armstrong gave a stirring address on war, that carried some impressive thoughts. The greed of men and nations brought on this war, and so long as this exists we shall not have peace on earth, he said. Sgt. Armstrong afterwards read out the names of those who died from this district who gave their lives in the First Great War, and ended up by repeating the Veterans' Creed.

After the singing of the hymn "O God, our help in ages past," and The National Anthem, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Taylor, and the service came to a close.

Baking Lesson

Housewives of Alberta are having trouble getting results from their Vitamins B White Flour, according to reports reaching Mrs. Blanche Macdonald, Director of Women's Extension Service with the Department of Agriculture. This can be avoided she said, if four simple rules are followed. First, a short rising period. Next when refrigerator rolls are being made allow dough to come to room temperature before putting in a warm place to rise. Again if the dough seems sticky try milk instead of potato water. And finally if wheat grain is added a lot of better volume will result.

Iron for Young Pigs

A common cause of death among smothering piglets is the fact that they are raised under more or less artificial conditions, in unventilated houses. Pigs farrowed in winter and early spring, closely confined to comparatively small pens with board or concrete floor, and receiving no minerals apart from those contained in the mother's milk, become anaemic and the mortality among them is high. This condition is not seen in any extent in pigs which are born during the late spring and summer months, when they are out in the sunshine and have free access to suitable soil and vegetation.

Anemia in pigs is due to a lack of iron compounds in the blood, which is traceable to a deficiency of iron in the milk supplied by the nursing sow. An excellent way to supply iron to piglets in pens, is to put water in the fall from uncontaminated soil and supply one square foot of sodality to each sow and her litter during the winter. In order to ensure a sufficient iron in the milk may be sprinkled lightly with a solution of one teaspoonful of ferrous sulphate in one quart of water. The iron which the young piglets receive in this way helps to make good the iron deficiency in the sow's milk and thus tends to prevent anemia.

Sawfly Resistant Wheat

A newly resistant rustless wheat has been developed by the Dominion experiment station at Swift Current, according to an announcement made in Calgary on October 21st. by L. B. Thompson, station superintendent. No seed is available to farmers as yet and it will be two or three years before such distribution can be made.

The new wheat has a stock too tough for the sawfly and was developed after seven years of experimentation.

Arthur W. Holmes

One of the CBC Technicians who made a home job for front-line troops in the Atlantic, Mr. Holmes was born in 1909, in the Canadian Pacific region of north British Columbia. He travelled with the first Canadian contingent. He recorded the Battle of Britain, visiting in Belgium's Park with a pack on his back and the first of his time in England. Now he is back in England again for his big job, after a year at the CBC's three transmitters, along a coast of Western highways.

Used Car Sales Are Under Price Control

Sales of used passenger cars by dealers or independent individuals are now governed by price ceiling regulations. The Wartime Prices and Control Board has issued regulations controlling maximum price for cars, and requiring a statement in writing between seller and purchaser.

Maximum prices are established on a percentage basis, according to the age of the model.

The Dominion Government, under the War Price Assistance Act, will make payments totalling about $6,000,000 to assist farmers in crop failures or loss of stock in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

THE COURSE TO FOLLOW

Grain congestion is very severe at the present time. The small initial wheat delivery quota simply demonstrates the truth of this statement.

In face of such conditions it is difficult for farmers to direct their limited quotas to the elevators of their choice, which in most cases is the Pool Elevators. The Pool Elevator system acknowledges that the problem is a complicated one. To tell the farmers to deliver all their grain to Pool elevators when space is limited is simply not common sense.

But the Wheat Pool does suggest that where farmers have any selection in the matter the Pool elevators should get the preference. Furthermore, if you are compelled by unavoidable circumstances to deliver your grain elsewhere, do not forget that you should return to Pool elevators whenever the situation clears up and the congestion is relieved.

LETTER FROM BRITAIN

Police Restrictions And Control Measures Have Avoided Further Food Shortages

Post-War Economy.
(By Sidney Harcourt.)
No one in Britain today imagines that it is going to switch back to the pre-war standard of living. No one, for example, imagines that it is going to return to the standard of living that existed before the war, and that rationing restrictions, and all the other measures that have been taken since the war, will be completely and at once.
Worked hard, they have produced more than the people of any other nation on earth. They have been able to do this because of the fact that while the war has been on, they have not had the kind of spending that they have now. They have not had it to the Government's thousands of millions of pounds.
The Government is the trustee of these savings. It owes a duty to the people to ensure that the money thus withdrawn after the war, and approximately the same value, the same purchasing power as it had when it was deposited.

So far Britain by the wisdom of the Government's financial policy and the strict control of the rationing, has avoided the distribution of consumer goods has been spared the wild gyrations of inflation, the wartime rise in prices has been reasonable. If there is still to be no inflation in the first year after the war, the Government's control over the distribution of goods will be a great help. The Government has a duty to see that the money is not spent for a time to be maintained. The taxes that will be levied on the money will be a great help. The Government has a duty to see that the money is not spent for a time to be maintained. The taxes that will be levied on the money will be a great help.

The Melting Pot
The melting pot is still many millions of people alive in Britain today who are not only too young to remember the unhappy consequences of the unbalanced distribution of goods from the last war. And with this in mind, they are not only too young to remember the unhappy consequences of the unbalanced distribution of goods from the last war. Grading Fox Pells

This Plan Has Helped To Improve Market In Canada

Prior to the outbreak of the war most of the ranches fur produced in British market, where they were offered to the world trade. With the outbreak of the war, the market was the only market left open to Canada.

Canadian production of silver fox was 250,000. At that time the United States placed a quota for imports of 100,000 pelts and Canada was allocated 50,000. The following year, Canadian imports to the United States was increased to 70,000.

At this period production in Canada was greatly in excess of exports, and to allow producers of good pelts the benefits of the United States market, the Dominion Department of Agriculture established a system of grading and qualitative control, allowing only pelts of better grade to be exported.

So far Britain by the wisdom of the Government's financial policy and the strict control of the rationing, has avoided the distribution of consumer goods has been spared the wild gyrations of inflation, the wartime rise in prices has been reasonable. If there is still to be no inflation in the first year after the war, the Government's control over the distribution of goods will be a great help.
